

The baby coach is soon out of sight. Father meets the family minus the baby. Now for a baby hunt. They run here and there, looking for the lost darling.

They look in in every baby coach, stop every nurse, question every policeman. At last they caught sight of the run-away coach and the chase begins anew.

The darling is found! Poor father gets a calling-down. The picnic is at an end. No more outing with the baby coach.

COPYRIGHT

THE Kidnapped

CHILD

An Excellent Comedy Film

S. LUBIN

LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF

FILMS, SLIDES, STEREOPTICON AND
LIFE MOTION PICTURE MACHINES

19-21 SOUTH EIGHTH ST.,

PHILADELPHIA, PA., U. S. A.

The Kidnapped Child

LENGTH, 300 FEET

PRICE, $33.00

A young mother brings her baby out on the lawn, leaves it with some toys and a pup and goes back into the house.

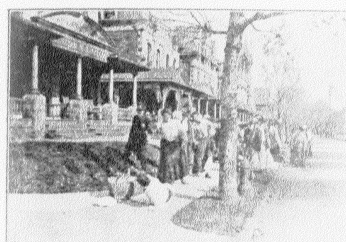

The youngster plays for a little while and then crawls into the dog kennel, where he falls asleep.

A short while after the mother comes out of the house and looks for the child. It is nowhere to be seen, but on the lawn is a man putting something into a large basket. The mother, thinking him a kidnapper, rushes after him.

The mother chases the fleeing man and is joined in the hue and cry by some more women. A most lively chase, full of fun and excitement.

Whoever sees the chase joins in the pursuit. At last a big crowd follows the frightened man, who falls down while looking backwards. He rises, however, before the crowd reaches him and quickly runs away.

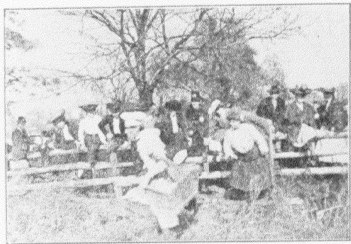

As the chase progresses it goes up hill and down hill, to the greatest laughter and merriment of the audience.

The supposed kidnapper escapes temporarily by hiding behind a tree. He is, however, soon discovered and the chase begins anew.

A fence is no obstacle for the fleeing man nor for the hastily pursuing women.

The villain is finally caught, and although he vehemently protests his innocence, is dragged back to the house by the policeman, followed by the clamoring crowd.

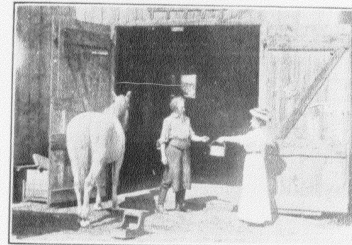

The last scene brings us back to the lawn, where the little boy is found playing before the dog kennel.

After this most exciting chase and pursuit and most ludicrous series of mix-ups, all ends well.

COPYRIGHT 1907

THE BLACKSMITH'S

DAUGHTER

S. LUBIN

LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF

LIFE MOTION PICTURE MACHINES
FILMS, SLIDES AND STEREOPTICONS

19-21 S. Eighth St.

Philadelphia, Pa., U. S. A.